THREE SERVICES HELD BY EVANGELISTS IN TABERNACLE YESTERDAY.

ALL WERE OF A VERY HIGH ORDER

At Night Dr. Torrey Preached Eloquently on "Heroes and Cowards" to a Large Audience of Men Only.

NOTES.

How many vowed that they would not march in the parade and then faced their duty and finally went and were glad to take part? Those who did so please stand up.

Mrs. Butler is a fine addition to the musical feature of the meetings. To hear her sing with Mr. Butler and Mr. Young is a rare treat.

The lady that sits with Mrs. Butler is her mother, Mrs. Anderson, of Springfield, Ill.

The evangelists will go from Sedalia to California, Mo., where they will hold meetings in the opera house for one day.

but they do not confess Him with their mouths for fear of what men will say of them, for they love the praise of men more than the praise of God. It is moral cowardice. There are hundreds of thousands of men and women just as fully convinced that Jesus Christ is the Son of God as I am, and yet holding back from open, public confession of Christ because of moral cowardice.

I turn from that dark picture to a bright one, II Corinthians 12:10. "Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake." Ah, there is a picture worth looking at! A man who was persecuted for his loyalty to the truth, reproached for the name of God. But although they heaped all manner of infamy upon him, he looked up with a smiling face and said, "I take pleasure in infamy."

Now, in a God-hating world like

WHY IT'S A FAILURE

BOOK WRITTEN BY WOMAN NOW DEAD CAUSES A SENSATION.

THE HUSBAND HAD IT PUBLISHED

Severe Criticism of Both American Young Men and Women—It Is Harder on the Women Than on the Men.

New York, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Anna A. Rogers, who died last year, wrote a book which she called "Why American Marriages Fail." Her husband has had the book published. Mrs. Rogers discussed the faults and failings of both men and women and was, if anything, more severe in her criticism of the young American woman than the young American man. She finds that the blame lies on both sides. Here are some extracts from the book:

"Her salary of love will sometimes be only partly paid, sometimes begrudgingly, sometimes not at all—very rarely overpaid—either by her husband or by her children."

"Of one thing the young wife may be sure, that a man has neither the instinct nor the time to coddle his disappointments in marriage—he puts on his hat."

"The responsibility for the present humiliating slave trade, in which rich American girls are sold to the titled decadents of England and the continent, is almost wholly the fault of the men of this country."

"The habit and fury of work, unreasoning, illogical, quite unrelated to any need, is a masculine disease in this country, and the whole social system has for years paid the penalty. Here and there a man tries to stop in time, but finds himself obsessed by work so that he can no longer think of anything else. He is as much of a slave to it as any opium taker to his drug or drunkard to his potion. It is a grave danger, not only to the individual, but to the whole American civilization."

"The young Americans, too, who are so contemptuous about our girls' preference for foreigners, must look to themselves and their shortcomings for some of the cause, and must, with the older men, share the responsibility for it. In the first place, our young men are not good lovers; however, in the end they may be good husbands."

"Would our American grandmothers have applied the word 'lady'—sacred in those days—to a fashionable young matron of today, with her youthful attire, her 'assisted' complexion, her slang, her cocktails and her cigarettes? What would grandmother have to say—what wouldn't she—at women riding astride and playing bridge for money half their waking hours, and their absolute independence of any power in heaven or earth?"

DENOUNCES COOK

WALTER WELLMAN ISSUES A STATEMENT REGARDING NORTH POLE CONTROVERSY.

STORY IS DELIBERATE IMPOSITION

Brooklyn Man's Delay in Presenting Records Main Ground for Criticism—"Two Minutes as Good as Two Months."

Washington, Nov. 29.—Walter Wellman, whose preparations for a conquest of the north pole in an airship were abandoned upon the announcement of the claims of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and Commander Robert E. Peary, issued here last night a long statement in which he analyzes the narratives of the two explorers. Peary's, he says, is "precise, workman-like, consistent and credible in every particular." Cook's story is denounced as self-evident and even deliberate imposture.

"Those of us who have had a share in arctic work had a first hope that Dr. Cook would be able to demonstrate his good faith. This has dissolved in analysis of his own story. A second hope—that he was the victim of some hallucination or mental illness, and himself believed he had been to the pole, though, of course, he has not, vanishes in the light of earlier and subsequent events. There remains, though one says it with keenest regret, only the wretched alternative that the journey which he did make, and the report which he gave of it were deliberately planned from the outset."

Mr. Wellman is especially caustic in his criticism of Dr. Cook for not turning over the records of his trip immediately to some scientific body. The record, he says, of any arctic traveler need no revision, for, if they are honestly inscribed, they cannot be subject to revision. Such records, he points out, are kept in "dirty, greasy, grimy notebooks," the inscriptions in which have been "penned with frostbitten fingers by a weary man lying in the half darkness of a reindeer skin bag, within a snow hut or tent."

"Let it be understood," says Mr. Wellman, "that such records are always ready. They are complete and perfect the moment they are written. They can be turned over to a scientific committee in two minutes as well as in two months—and much better."

No Word From Dr. Cook Yet. New York, Nov. 29.—The sudden shift of base by which Dr. Cook, the seeker, became Dr. Cook, the sought, has enlisted many eager explorers, who have been able to contribute facts of collateral interest only. Dr. Cook, who slipped quietly away, was still in retreat last night. Mr. Wake, his counsel, says he has gone to the country for a week to seek seclusion. Mr. Wake, his confidant, still affirms that he knows where Dr. Cook is and that he is not going to tell.

Friends of Dr. Cook, who are grieved over the turn his affairs have taken, explained the situation today in this way:

"It is true that the doctor's fears have been greatly worked on by the belief of some of those with whom he associated that there exists a plot to steal his records and even to take him away. He engaged two private

SECRETARY BALLINGER'S REPORT, JUST ISSUED, TAKES A POSITIVE STAND.

URGES PUBLIC LANDS LEGISLATION

Holds They Should Be Segregated Into Well Defined Divisions—Praises Manufacturers of Explosives.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Important recommendations urging remedial legislation by congress for securing the best use of the remaining public lands, are the principal features of the annual report of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, made public last night.

These recommendations include specific authority to classify and segregate the lands into well defined divisions, according to their greatest apparent use, legislation designed to conserve the coal deposits as a public utility, and to prevent monopoly or extortion in their disposition, and authorize the classification and disposition of all lands capable of being used for water power development under the interior department.

Warm praise is given manufacturers of explosives used in coal mining, who, the report says, have made commendable efforts to increase the safety of their explosives, even beyond the requirements of the geological survey tests. They have shown a desire to carry out the wishes of the state inspectors and the recommend-

CRY OF VENGEANCE

FRONTENAC, KANSAS, AROUSED TO FRENZY OVER LAST KILLING.

MINERS OFFER A LARGE REWARD

Men and Women Have Been Slain There Often, but Children Have Been Safe—No Clew to the Murderer.

Pittsburg, Kas., Nov. 29.—The chances that the slayers of the Bork family will be captured seem slimmer than ever. Two days have passed since the finding of the bodies of William Bork, his wife and his 3-year-old son beside the Old Schoolhouse road, five miles north of here. Not a clew of importance has been found and no motive has appeared.

Inquiry among Mrs. Bork's acquaintances in Frontenac has revealed not a reason why she should have an enemy. She was married when 17 years old to Bork, the only sweetheart she ever had, and settled naturally into the hard working life of a coal miner's wife. Just a type of hundreds of other patient, home-making women of the town of Frontenac.

William Bork, the husband, was a coal miner. He began mining when he was 18 years old. He was 23 when he was killed. His coal miner's cap with the tin lamp attached was still hanging on the back porch of his home in Frontenac today. His overalls were beside, ready to be worn into the mines Saturday. He was not the kind of a man to make deadly enemies—just a plain, hard-working miner.

Barring two quarrels, one with a French miner and the other with a negro miner, neither of whom seem to have been connected with the tragedy, William Bork is not known to have had trouble nor made an enemy.

Still, it isn't the death of the husband and wife which has stirred the men of Frontenac. They are used to that. Dozens of similar cases could be cited. Other women have been attacked and killed in Crawford county. Within the last ten years more than forty men have been killed in fights, and ambushes and feuds in the Frontenac mining district alone, and in many cases no arrests were made.

But never before was a baby murdered as it lay in its mother's arms. The men of Frontenac are rough, but their main happiness is in their families.

Late Saturday night 150 men met in the town hall at the behest of Mayor John Beitzinger and made up a $500 reward for the capture of the murderer. Nothing was said about his conviction—just his capture. One thousand miners stand ready to attend to his conviction.

In spite of this, little has been done by the authorities. At 6 o'clock Saturday night, after the failure of the bloodhounds to pick up the murderer's trail, A. J. Merleweather, sheriff of Crawford county, returned to his home in Girard, the county seat. Dr. E. D. Dudley, coroner, deferred the inquest until Sunday morning, more than twenty-four hours after the finding of the bodies.

The sheriff, the county attorney, L. A. Woolard, and the city attorney of Frontenac, J. E. True, spent most of the day yesterday investigating the

SUNDAY NIGHT'S FIRE

Home of Wade Page, With Contents, Very Badly Damaged.

The home of Wade H. Page, an M. & T. car repairer, residing at 1215 South Kentucky avenue, caught fire from some unknown cause in the absence of the family at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, and with the contents was badly burned, entailing a damage of about $400.

The house is owned by James Arnold. The blaze was discovered by a neighbor, who promptly notified the fire department. Heroic efforts of the firemen saved the dwelling from total destruction.

Mr. Page carried $500 insurance on the contents.

Mary S. Ming, through her attorney, J. H. Bowron, today instituted suit in the Pettis county circuit court against Constable L. H. Kahrs, George Wittlinger, August Kahrs, C. A. Guenther, M. M. Stevenson and A. L. Shortridge for judgment for $5,000 on the official bond of the constable and for $1,000 damages against the defendants for the failure to deliver to the plaintiff one of two horses levied upon by the constable on a duly executed attachment.

THE COCKTAIL LADY.

While on the stand in a New Jersey breach of promise suit, in which he was the defendant, Charles Nissens, of Newark, testified that the lady's fondness for taking cocktails and other stimulants in public was what had chilled his love.

The jury evidently did not regard this as a good plea. It remained out for about three-quarters of an hour and returned with a verdict for $3,500 in the plaintiff's favor. It probably thought that the defendant should have informed himself a little more accurately as to her habits before promising marriage.

Aside from the strict legal aspect of the question, however, it strikes us that there is some merit in the defendant's argument, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. If there is anything that is calculated to cause a prospective husband to have numerous qualms—to think that, after all, he may have overestimated the warmth of his passion for the lady—it is the realization that she belongs to the "cocktail lady" class.

Of late the newspapers have not been quite so full of the escapades of "cocktail ladies" and the tragedies that follow in their train. But it's hardly possible that any one has yet forgotten Claudia Hains, who may be taken as a fair advanced type of this apparently growing class.

Of course, this type has its reason for existence. It answers a demand. It is unquestionably true that many persons feel an enthusiastic yearning for the society of women who combine the freedom of manners possessed by their trailer sisters with an outward respectability. They find the combination pleasant in the extreme.

But so far as we have observed, and the protest of the defendant in the case seems to confirm our observation, this demand for "cocktail ladies" is notable for a marked absence of marital sentiment. As a rule the most enthusiastic admirers of "cocktail ladies" do not somehow associate their peculiar charm as "good fellows" with the idea of a domestic establishment.

The "cocktail lady" is the only one of her sex who seems to have succeeded in vindicating her claim to a complete equality with man. All are frank enough to admit that there are many of the type who can drink as much as one of the sterner sex. The only trouble is that in vindicating her equality she lost her superiority. Was the exchange worth while?

THE WORST YET.

With the astounding disclosures brought to light in the customs service of wholesale bribery by protected interests it behoves the public to pause for a moment and ponder upon the enormity of the crime.

Favored by a kindly and benevolent government which a century since undertook to foster infant industries in the United States by a system of protection, they have abused that confidence and friendliness by a most insidious crime. The sugar trust, today one of the most formidable and powerful organizations in the world, stands with its fingers clutching at the throat of the United States government.

It makes and unmakes statesmen, executives and the judiciary, the policy of "contribution for protection" being responsible for the maintenance of the present protective tariff in all of its needless hardships and its unreasonable demands. Since those long gone-by days, when Oxnard first whipped the committee in Washington with the lash of refusal to contribute to the republican campaign fund, until now it has been arrogant and uncourteous to the government which has done so much to foster it at the expense of the American working man, despite the cry that it was done for his protection.

The nation stands aghast today, however, when the full measure of its perfidy is about to be revealed. Gray haired men, grown old in the service of the United States, are being snatched from their high positions and humbled to the dust because in an uncautious moment they listened to the proposition of the tempter to defraud the government by giving short weights.

The die was cast, and, as ever, the wrongdoer was hard and fast in the clutches of a relentless task-master, who, like the daughter of the horse leech, made the constant cry of "give." More and more the thieving was practiced until the stealings have aggregated stupendous sums of money. And this by a corporation favored more than any other by the United States and its protective tariff.

The man who goes out with a friend spends an evening with him in dissipation and then raffles the pocket of his benefactor is accounted the most pusillanimous thief the profession produces, and even among his kind is looked upon with contempt. What, then, must be the feeling toward a great corporation, having benefitted to an untold extent by the laws of the country, enacted at its behest, engages in debauching the employees of the government so that it may further profit by the short weighing of its imports by the customs officials?

EUROPE FAR BEHIND AMERICA

Seven Million of the Nine Million Telephones in the World Are in This Country.

Of 9,500,000 telephones in the world 7,000,000 are in America, 2,000,000 in Europe and the other 500,000 scattered over the remainder of the planet's surface. Commenting on these recent estimates and their probable correctness the National Telephone Journal of London says:

The reason why Europe cuts so poor a figure in comparison with America is that four or five of the most civilized and populous countries are extraordinarily backward in telephone development. France, Austria, Hungary, Belgium, Holland and Italy—in the first four of which the telephone is entirely in the hands of the government—may be instanced. In the whole of France there are less than 20,000 stations, and in Austria and Hungary combined there are actually fewer telephones than in the city of Chicago.

Ancient cities of universal renown counting 400,000 or 500,000 inhabitants, and moreover of greater commercial importance, such as Lyons, Marseilles, Naples, Antwerp and Prague are far behind American towns with 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants, such as Peoria, St. Joseph, Dayton and Norfolk, Va., which few Europeans have ever heard

Many articles, however, such as Coffees, Teas, Cocoa, Confectionery, Spices, Baking Powder, California canned and evaporated Fruits, Raisins, Currents, Figs, Dates, Oranges, Sugar, Salt, Vinegar, numerous packages Cereals, Gelatine, Corn Starch, Cod Fish, Macaroni, Evaporated Milk, Etc., are no higher in price to the consumer than they were ten years ago, while in many cases the quality has improved. Another feature which should be borne in mind is that the consuming public has been demanding better quality than they were formerly satisfied with and we are here to meet the demand.

FOUND AN EMIGRANT CACHE

Contained Articles Buried by Party of Gold Seekers When Attacked by Indians.

Investigating the truth of the legend which told of the attacks of Indians on a party of emigrants bound in 1854 from Missouri to the Rogue River Valley, Ore., their flight through Nevada and their killing of oxen and their burial of all except necessary articles of travel, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Sill of this city unearthed a few days ago the remains of the emigrant encampment and discovered an oak barrel containing articles of food, knives, scissors, whisky, nails and hammers and other accessories of the trip across the plains in the prairie schooners.

The achievement of the Sills is looked upon as particularly creditable, as many searching parties have made attempts to discover the buried articles in canyon "49," on ranch "49," owned by J. T. Cummings of Woodland.

Cummings assisted the Sills in the search, and after several days the buried articles were found and unearthed. The unearthing of the barrel required picks and shovels and several hours work in a deep canyon.

According to legend the emigrants were pursued for several days by the Indians, who shot many of their oxen, and they were forced to make the trip on foot. In order that the journey could be made the more quickly from the hostile country of the redmen the barrel of articles which has just been unearthed was buried.—Berkeley correspondence San Francisco Call.

RETURNS AFTER 24 YEARS

Man Thought to Be Dead Surprises Grown-Up Family.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 29.—Henry Depidge, a captain on the Great Lakes for many years, who for twenty-four years has been separated from his family and believed by his children to be dead, walked into the home of one of his daughters in Chicago Sunday night and today there was a reunion in which four generations were represented.

The meeting between the captain, who is now 79 years old, and his children, his seventeen grandchildren and his great-grandchildren, took place at the home of a grandson, John F. Tyrrell.

Capt. Depidge left his home in St. Joseph, Mich., twenty-four years ago for a trip to Buffalo. On his arrival there he was taken ill. After many weeks at a hospital he returned to his ship. In the meantime his family had removed to Chicago. He was unable to find them there.

He retired a few years ago and has since been living in Buffalo. Recently he decided to come to Chicago to make another search for them. Through old, like sailors he discovered one of his daughters.

Yesterday Mrs. George Taylor, one of Capt. Depidge's daughters, was on a street car, when she saw a man who resembled her father on the street. On her return home she was telling the family of the wonderful resemblance, when there was a knock at the door and her father entered.

Animals Are Poor Sailors.

The polar bear is the only wild animal that likes a trip on the waves, according to a French scientist who has just studied its behavior at sea. He is quite jolly when aboard ship, but all the other animals violently resent such a voyage and vociferously give vent to their feelings until sickness brings silence.

The tiger suffers most of all. He whines pitifully, his eyes water continually and he rubs his stomach with his terrible paws. Horses are bad sailors and often die on a sea voyage.

Oxen are heroic in their attempts not to give way to sickness. Elephants do not like the sea, but they are amenable to medical treatment. A good remedy is a bucketful of hot water containing three and a half pints of whisky and seven ounces of quinine.—Fur News.

City Life Is Lopsided.

"I sometimes think," says Mr. Markham, "that only men with lopsided brains love to live in the city. God never made a city—he made a garden. City life is largely the cause of the general nervous breakdown of the race. This is an age of nerves, and the city is responsible for it. My ideal is a life that has the freshness and freedom of the country, and yet is within easy access of the town, where men can go and transact business. In my business, that of making verse, I need the peace of the country, which is the peace of God. But I like to come in contact with men, and so I go to town. I think the city of the future will not be crowded by city dwellers—we are coming to know too much for that. But, for the present, mankind is still lopsided."—Suburban Life.

Plenty of Birds.

If we allow six inches, the measure of the English sparrow of our streets, to be the average length of a migratory bird, then, this mighty host, if we could arrange its restless, flitting members in a quiet, orderly manner, like soldiers on parade, would make a line 4,090,909 miles long. This earth is much too small for such a line. We might arrange our birds in 326 lines and each would extend from the north pole to the south pole along the whole length of North and South America. If we arranged the birds at the equator they would encircle the globe 163 times.—D. Lange, in the Atlantic.

Wit Often an Affliction.

Wit is an affliction unless used with discretion and good sense. The habit of being invariably amusing will bring you into great disfavor. The sharp-tongued woman who will have her little laugh at the expense of her neighbors usually pays dearly for her fun. It is as much an art to be quiet and self-possessed as to be vivacious and entertaining, and the woman who can adjust her moods to the occasion is the one who finds herself usually the most popular member of her community.

WORKED "BUNCO" GAME

Counting Pigeons in Chicago Costs Countryman $105.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—The council license committee has decided that all "runners" for clothing stores, pawn shops, etc., must pay a license fee of $300 a year. Incidentally it was charged during the deliberations of the committee that about half of the so-called "runners" are confidence men.

"Only the other day one of these runners" met a fellow from the country in front of the city hall," said Alderman Bowler. "The countryman was looking at the pigeons. The confidence man told him that he couldn't look at the pigeons in Chicago, as it was against the law, and, displaying a star, placed the farmer under arrest.

He retired a few years ago and has since been living in Buffalo. Recently he decided to come to Chicago to make another search for them. Through old, like sailors he discovered one of his daughters.

Yesterday Mrs. George Taylor, one of Capt. Depidge's daughters, was on a street car, when she saw a man who resembled her father on the street.

On her return home she was telling the family of the wonderful resemblance, when there was a knock at the door and her father entered.

"Why was I counting them?"

"That's against the law," answered the judge.

"How many did you count?"

"Twenty-one," answered the farmer.

"The fine is $5 apiece for counting pigeons here," commented the judge, and the victim handed over $105."

Conductor Recovers Valuable Dog.

M. L. Dehaven, an M. K. & T. conductor, who one day the past week lost a fine bird dog, valued at $50, recovered the canine Sunday through the medium of the Democrat-Sentinel.

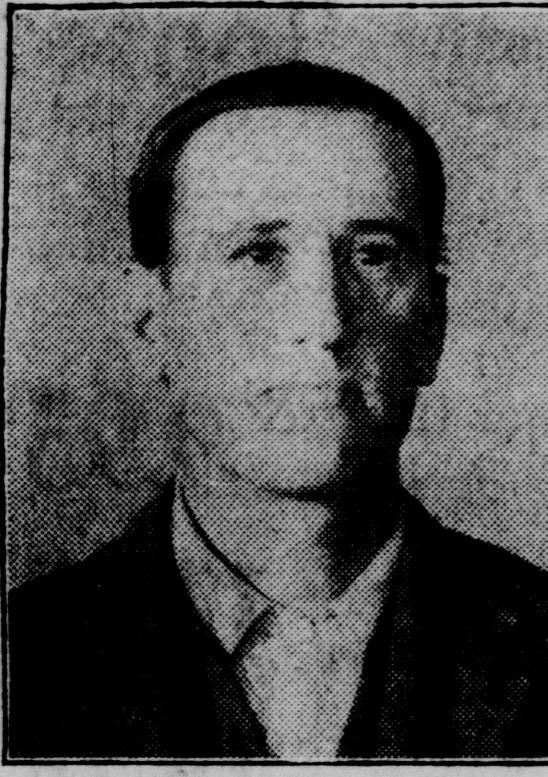

The dog followed a lady, living on a farm six miles south of Sedalia, to her home the past week, where it remained until yesterday, when the keeper noticed an advertisement in

HOME TESTIMONIAL

When the leading citizens of this community freely come forward and publicly announce the result of our advanced method of treatment, it is certainly the best evidence in the world of the genuineness of our claims that we can cure when others fail. Pelvic disorders is one of the most deadly foes with which our civilization has to deal, but science is ever on the march and that deep-seated, chronic disease of the kidneys, bladder, prostatic gland and urinary tract readily yield to the influence of our discoveries. We herewith present the following home testimonial as absolute proof:

BLOODY URINE

Dr. Casto, Chief Physician:

I feel it my duty to recommend you to the public as a specialist of great skill in the treatment of deep seated urinary diseases. My case was certainly no ordinary one, for my urine was bloody almost every day for over a year, and now that it has become natural again, I am more than pleased. I shall never cease to praise your advanced methods for the cure of such conditions, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries in regard to my case and cure. With best regards, I am Yours truly,

A. C. HENDERSON.

THEY LIVE ON VICE

THOUSANDS OF MEN DO IN THE BIG CITIES ON SHAME OF WOMEN.

M'CLURE TELLS OF WHITE SLAVERY

New York Women's Meeting Appalled by Revelations of Magazine Publisher—"Lawbreakers Make and Enforce Laws."

New York, Nov. 29.—An audience of fashionably dressed women, who filled the Hudson theater Saturday to hear S. S. McClure, publisher of McClure's Magazine, lecture on "Making a Magazine," were appalled by his revelations as to the extent of white slavery.

The lecture was under the auspices of the League for Political Education.

Colonel McClure spoke of the several national problems with which a magazine must deal. Conservation of natural resources, control of corporations and municipal government were some of the problems.

In speaking on the last topic, he said that two classes of lawbreakers made the laws and enforced them in American cities. They were the men in charge of public utilities and the panderers to vice, the speaker declared.

Colonel McClure read from the government report testimony and letters originating with owners of white slaves. These slave holders suggested keeping the girls without clothing to prevent their running away. One French couple in Chicago kept their books with the completeness of a modern business.

"Ninety per cent of the women leading this life in the United States," said the speaker, "are held in subjection by men who are helped by the police of our city. There are 200,000 such women in the United States, and the income from their exploitation is over $30,000,000 a year.

"Tens of thousands of young men live upon this vice, and there are 10,000 in this city alone. There are over 4,000 such girls in this misery in New York city, many of them held prisoners without street clothing."

Colonel McClure made it plain that in his opinion the men engaged in this traffic belonged to the inferior races of Europe.

"For the first time in history," he said, "the splendid Anglo-Saxon stock which had spread over North America and Australia was giving way before an influx of the inferior breeds from Southern Europe. Australia's laws were saving her from this peril, while America is in its throes."

CONTINUES TO WORK WONDERS IN SEDALIA

BUT NEXT WEEK WILL BE THE LAST OF DEMONSTRATION.

It is absurd to doubt the great merits of Root Juice as proofs of its wonderful health-promoting merits can be found in scores of homes here in Sedalia and vicinity. It has undoubtedly proved to be the world's greatest healing tonic to the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys. No weak, sickly man or woman can afford to wait another day without getting some of the great medicine, as a few doses usually create marked improvement and from the experience of many local people the soothing, healing and strengthening action of the remedy is so rapid that it is absolutely wonderful. Dozens of people have so reported at Wilcox's drug store within the last few days. We are informed that the demonstrations will positively close at this point next Saturday night and until the close of the demonstrations the juice will be sold for one dollar a bottle or three for two dollars and a half.

SURRENDERED ONLY TO AGE

New York Cashier Who Had Fourteen Days Off in Fifty-Two Years of Service.

For 52 years Louis Nicolovian had been cashier and office manager for Schefer, Schramm & Vogel, bankers and commission merchants at 476 Broome street, and in that time he had lost 14 days, the New York Times says. These came so far apart that most of the men in the office do not now remember that he was ever away.

One recent Tuesday the tall, straight, black-haired old man did not appear at his desk. The employees remembered that he had often said that he hated to see Sunday come in to spoil his work; that when on Monday morning he got back to his figures he had always seemed as happy as a boy out of school.

It was almost preposterous to think of him, though he was 97 years old, as sick; it was even more preposterous to think that he had allowed any ordinary thing to keep him away from his ledger. Yet no word came from him.

The large force of men over whom he had charge talked in whispers about the extraordinary thing that must have kept Louis Nicolovian away from his work. His chair seemed strangely vacant. There was about his closed desk and the corner where he always sat a depressing lonesomeness. It seemed as desolate as an old country house when its occupants have departed and its windows are nailed up.

After three days' absence, the old man entered the office. The employees expected him to take his chair and go on with his figures. He didn't. He walked into the private office of Carl Schefer, senior member of the firm, and remained there a long time. When he came out he walked to his old desk, weeping, bade it a silent farewell. Then he went out.

In the last few days his 97 years had at last forced him to recognize their claim. He had voluntarily retired. For the rest of his life he is to get a pension of half his salary.

MASTER OF MANY LANGUAGES

Wilfred Stevens, Chief Translator of the State Department, is a Linguistic Wonder.

Wilfred Stevens of Shakopee, Minnesota, translator in the service of the United States government, has a working knowledge of 20 odd languages and can converse in as many dialects of various other tongues as may be demanded of him. He knows more diplomatic secrets than any official of the government, with the possible exception of the president and secretary of state. In his capacity of chief translator of the state department he practically reads every secret message that comes to Washington from other governments. When he entered the state department as a translator a little more than five years ago he was familiar with nine languages, and since that time has mastered every language of political importance in the world. Mr. Stevens has recently perfected an entirely original classification of all the Chinese characters, whereby he is able to place his finger instantly on any one of the 12,000—something which is said to be impossible under any other classification now in use.

We are told that the preaching of vegetarianism interferes greatly with the shoe business. Last year Germans took a notion to eat less meat and, according to the Bookkeeper, the shoe manufacturers in the land of the kaiser were in despair. It is necessary to sell a great deal of meat in order that hides may be obtained without loss.

This is another instance of the need of co-operation between manufacturers of all kinds. Unless Swift and Armour and the other packers are able to sell their goods the factories in the east must do with less leather.

When the factories are forced to get along with less leather the world must go along with fewer shoes, and must also pay a higher price for those it does buy.

It is interesting to know that the foreign shoe trade is constantly increasing. American salesmen are entering Darkest Africa and inducing the natives to court bunions and corns by departing from their good custom of going barefoot.

OIL LAKE IN MEXICAN GULF

Believed to Be Fed from Deposits That Feed the Oil Fields of Texas.

Reports from ship captains entering Galveston tell of a great and growing lake out in the gulf which is evidently fed from oil deposits feeding the oil fields of Texas. While it is known this oil lake, situated about 100 miles southeast of Galveston, has existed for several years, it is only recently that has begun to spread out and is now reported to be more than one mile in diameter, while another ship captain said the surface of the water was covered with bubbling oil as far as their eyes could see.

The latest report is from Capt. Nettleton of the British steamship Comedian, just in from Liverpool. He reports the oil bubbling from three distinct jets in the gulf and says the oil deposit is thickening and spreading at a rapid rate. At this point the gulf is 5,400 feet, or over a mile deep, and tremendous pressure is required to force this heavy oil through this body of water for over a mile and then shoot it out in three streams.

A survey of the chart of the Gulf and the oil fields shows that the lake in the Gulf is in a direct line with the strata of oil from which the east Texas fields are supplied.

Whether the recent hurricane, ploughing through the Gulf, has puncturn the oil strata, or whether the release of this immense quantity of oil is due to a subterranean earthquake or disruption is not known.

Some experts incline to the opinion that a terrific explosion in the bed of the Gulf is responsible for this tapping of the oil in the bowels of the earth.

As a Japanese Sees Us.

In talking to a Japanese of high standing and culture who was in this country on governmental business the impression we make upon an oriental was finally extracted.

After evading a long time and paying suave compliments, commenting on our energy and commercial enterprise, he finally confessed that the two most striking characteristics seemed to him to be bad manners and bad taste.

No one remains long in our land without learning that our bad manners are but the result of overfilling the hours with activity and that they hide a generosity, a real kindness of heart, that it would be difficult to duplicate elsewhere in the world; but the bad taste is undoubtedly here.—Harper's Weekly.

Wreaths of Roses.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook wore a wreath of roses during his triumphal entry into New York harbor. The young Brooklyn woman who presented him with it meant well enough, but, strictly speaking, the rose wreath is not triumphant in significance. Roman gentlemen used to wear it only on convivial occasions. It was a descendant of the original wooden fillet, tied tightly around the head, with a view to mitigating the effect of intoxication. As luxury grew, mere wool seemed paltry, and all sorts of flowers which had the reputation of being anti-intoxicants were substituted. Roses being esteemed the choicest, it was an offense punishable with imprisonment to be seen in the street with the wreath of roses on.

New Insulator.

A substitute for gutta percha, ebony, celluloid, amber and other insulators has been invented by Dr. Bakeland, president of the American Electro-Chemical society, from which it takes the name "bakelite." It is produced through the condensation of formaldehyde and phenol. It is said to be an electric insulator of the first rank, insoluble in all ordinary solvents and not melting at high temperatures. In chemical constitution it closely resembles Japanese lacquer, the composition of which has always been more or less of a mystery.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

EUSAPIA PALADINO'S DOINGS ARE NOT SO WONDERFUL, AFTER ALL.

TABLE MOVING NOT MARVELOUS

Scientist Says the Woman Is Not a Conjurer but a Hysteric—Telekinesis Is the Secret of Phenomena.

New York, Nov. 29.—Dr. James Hyslop talked about Eusapia Paladino Sunday to Dr. Robert S. MacArthur's men's class at the Calvary Baptist church. Dr. Hyslop said that too much fuss was being made over Eusapia, and he asserted that he could not see that there was any contravention of the laws of nature involved in the levitation of a table.

"I've no criticism to offer of Eusapia Paladino," said Dr. Hyslop. "In my opinion she deserves careful investigation. I regard it as a misfortune that she is popularly considered to accomplish her feats by conjuring. Eusapia Paladino is a hysteric. She is no fraud, and whatever she does whenever she is in the so-called trance she is not responsible for. It is not my place to laugh at her or to doubt the honesty of her intentions."

"One does not have to think very far to see three instances of motion, the causation of which is at a distance from the object acted upon. One is magnetism, the other is wireless telegraphy and a third is gravitation.

"The particular form of motion which Eusapia appears to have exhibited has been known to psychologists for some time. It is called telekinesis. The one thing over which we should be exercised is the matter of evidence. Does Eusapia actually accomplish all that she appears to do? I take it that that is the chief point for scientific examination."

Then Dr. Hyslop spoke of the laws which may underlie telekinesis of the sort which Paladino apparently exhibits. He says that if one presumes for a moment that Eusapia really does make tables move, that such activity does not for a minute mean that John or any other spirit force is behind it. Before one can readily come to a conclusion as to the causation of the phenomena one must, he said, be sure of the facts associated with the appearance of the phenomena.

FANTASTIC STONE ON GRAVE.

Remarkable Memorial Erected by Father in Memory of Daughter He Idolized.

In all the cemeteries of the world there probably exists no more fantastic conception than in the rural graveyard of Pleasant Ridge, in England. To the memory of a daughter whom he idolized, Hannibal Clark, a wealthy but simple-minded farmer, erected this remarkable shaft of granite. He was so affected by her death that he survived but a short time after he had made provision for the erection of the monument. Not only did he stipulate what he wished engraved concerning his daughter, but also concerning his wife and himself. It was the freakish desire of the father to place upon the monument a replica of all that the girl loved on earth. He left instructions that no expense be spared to inscribe upon the stone a miniature reproduction of the objects upon which she lavished her affections. In obedience thereto, the stonemasons chiseled in bold relief no fewer than fifty symbols. Nearly every inch of space is taken up with these queer figures. They include a house, fence, plow, grain, cradle, rooster, hen, turkey, cow, horse, side-saddle, pair of scissors, thimble, violin, copies of love letters, owl, fish, etc. Everything that pertained to the farm, domestic life and outdoor pleasures was, where possible, reproduced upon this monument.

Haunted Alaskan Island.

To the south and west of Kodiak, distant about 100 miles, and forming one of the Semidi group, is the island of Chirikof, the haunted island of Alaska.

Enshrouded for a great portion of the time with almost impenetrable fog, the Tanna Tribune says, this lonely isle is an object of terror to the natives, who will not go near the island, saying it means certain death to invade the canny confines, and there are few men in the far north who have the temerity to test the truth of the many and weird tales told of this forbidding and barren island.

Shipmasters and sailors passing the place assert that the agonizing cries of Russian exiles sent there to starve or die of torture are sometimes heard on quiet nights, while the clink of chains and the sound of blows are testified to in an affidavit by a white man who once attempted to remain there for a week and who lost his reason.

As to Public Nuisances.

There would be no public nuisances if public nuisances never increased the profits of influential people.

A Way Out.

A broker and banker, who was a member of the Russian relief committee that had in charge the transportation of food to Russia from Philadelphia a few years ago during a famine, likes to tell of an unusual experience he had while soliciting for the relief fund. In speaking of it he said: "I tell it because it shows the speed with which some people think. I called on a man who was always a generous contributor to charity. He was out of sorts when I saw him and after I explained my mission he said: 'You fellows are always begging for something.' I was taken aback for a few seconds and when I recovered myself I asked, 'What would you do if the wolf were at your door?' He stared at me in a terrifying manner for a second and then blurted out, 'Why, you fool, I would eat the wolf.' I noticed when I was passing out the door he was still watching me sharply. I have never served on a relief committee since then."

Lysander John Up Against It.

The Lysander John Appletons lived in a house of five rooms for many years, and were so crowded that none of their kin ever expected to be invited to visit them. But recently Lysander John made a little extra money and his wife had two rooms built on.

"Have you heard the news?" was shouted through Kinville. "The Appletons have two more rooms."

News like that spreads like fire in Kinville, and they began coming by twos and threes, and always with the deafest old man, loudest voiced old women and crossest baby they could find.

This explains why Lysander John's limbs are tied in knots; he has been sleeping in a hammock for six weeks past, being crowded out of his bed by visitors from Kinville.—Atchison Globe.

The Cartoonist's Sting.

Signs and symbols seem to be just as effective now as in the early days of our race, when the primitive aboriginal chiseled in picture language the record of his doings. There are still enough undeveloped minds among us to give pictures more force than printed words, and the whiplash on the end of the cartoonist's facile pencil more and more frequently raises welts where the editorial and "spread" headline cannot sting the thick hide.

'TWAS GREAT DAY

this it takes courage to be an out and out christian. It takes more courage than most of you men have. There is many a man today who has great courage, who has enough courage to be a soldier, to go to the front and stand on the firing line all day in the face of a galling fire from the enemy's guns, who hasn't enough courage to go back to the barracks at night and kneel down and say his prayers, and endure the chaff of his fellow soldiers. It takes the sublimest courage to be an out-and-out christian.

I will give you tonight five reasons why every man and woman should publicly confess Christ before the world.

In the first place, because He is such a glorious Master. There is nothing to be ashamed of in Jesus Christ. It is the noblest thing a man can say, "I am a follower of the Perfect Man; I am a follower of the Son of God; I am a follower of One infinitely glorious, Jesus Christ of Nazareth."

In the second place, every man and woman should confess the Lord Jesus publicly before the world for the sake of their influence. Every man has an influence. There is not a man in Sedalia but has an influence with somebody. Every one has an influence either for or against Jesus Christ.

Every man and woman should confess Christ before the world, because it is the only way to obtain the fullness of blessing that there is in Jesus Christ. He says in Matthew 10:32-33, "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my father which is in heaven; but whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my father which is in heaven."

There are some of you here tonight, who, if you had the courage of your convictions and came to Christ, not secretly, as some of you want to, but walked right out here and took your seat down in front when I called you to do it, it would shake Sedalia, and you are responsible to Almighty God to do it. Are you man enough to do it? Will you exert your influence in Jesus Christ?

In the third place, everyone should publicly confess Christ before the world, because it is the only way to obtain the fullness of blessing that there is in Jesus Christ.

The Lysander John Appletons lived in a house of five rooms for many years, and were so crowded that none of their kin ever expected to be invited to visit them. But recently Lysander John made a little extra money and his wife had two rooms built on.

"Have you heard the news?" was shouted through Kinville. "The Appletons have two more rooms."

News like that spreads like fire in Kinville, and they began coming by twos and threes, and always with the deafest old man, loudest voiced old women and crossest baby they could find.

This explains why Lysander John's limbs are tied in knots; he has been sleeping in a hammock for six weeks past, being crowded out of his bed by visitors from Kinville.—Atchison Globe.

Collected Specimens.

Students of the crustacea often find the cod a useful assistant collector. Thus the circular crab seems to be a favorite food of cods and rays, and it was chiefly from the stomachs of these fish that some of the older naturalists obtained specimens.

Another hunting ground of the naturalist is the sailing ship which has been in foreign parts. In this way Dr. Clark has been able to add a tiny Chilian crab to the Cornish crustacea. It was obtained by Valentine on the sides of a bark from Patagonia in a coating of seaweed and barnacles.

The crab itself may become a collector of specimens for the zoologist, for it is often covered with various species of sponges, hydroids and bryozoans. Sometimes the species found thus are such as are not easily obtainable otherwise. One species of crab, indeed (mala squinado), is regarded in Cornwall as the provider of material for the naturalist.—The Zoologist.

MUST PET THE TYPEWRITER

Let It Be Understood, However, This Means the Machine, Not the Operator.

"My typewriter is acting something awful this morning," said Miss Crossley, with a distressed look on her fair face.

The older stenographer smiled on her tranquilly. "Have you petted it enough?" she asked.

Miss Crossley looked blank. "I—I don't know what you mean."

"Let me show you. Typewriters are extremely responsive to a little petting. No, don't laugh. I don't mean the operators. They may be, too, but I am talking about the machines. These cool autumn mornings typewriters are often balky until they have been coaxed and warmed with a little kindly human attention."

She lifted the typbar gently and brushed out the disfiguring ink with which it was clogged; dropped a bit of oil here and there into the holes intended for such treatment; pushed the carriage softly back and forth; brushed off the dust; wound up the ribbon, polished the nickel; inserted a sheet of paper in a caressing manner and whirled it lightly around the platen a few times; then coaxingly tapped half a dozen keys. They responded amiably. She struck a few more. Nothing wrong. "You'll find it all right," she assured the amazed miss. "Just be gentle with it at first and you'll have no trouble. Treat it as you would like to have anybody treat you when you get up cross in the morning, and you never will have to send for the repair man."

To Legalize Tipping.

While praiseworthy attempts are being made in London to minimize the tipping system, a movement has been started in Berlin to make the custom compulsory. The cafe waiters in the kaiser's capital have formed themselves into a union with the object of legalizing tipping. They have drawn up a scale of tips and passed resolutions to enforce it. If the order a customer gives in a restaurant amounts to three shillings he will be expected to tip the waiter to the tune of 12 per cent. If the order is over three shillings the "kelner" will be content with a tip of 10 per cent. In the larger restaurants the waiter will be satisfied with a modest 8 per cent. tip if the bill amounts to £5. The restaurant keepers protest against this tariff of tips, which they consider will interfere with their business, but the waiters refuse to give way.—The Throne.

Explains Case of "Swell Head."

A medical journal declares the belief that education increases brain cells and fibers is delusive. Certainly enlarged cranium is no sign of brain and the error of mistaking a bald head for a high forehead is very common.

TROUBLE FOR CUBA

Movement to Oust President Gomez and Put Vice President In.

Havana, Nov. 29.—Not since the downfall of the administration of President Palma has the political atmosphere of Cuba been more laden with suggestions of trouble than it is now. The re-established republic is scarcely nine months old and already rumors have become persistent that some way is being sought to bring about the retirement of President Gomez, either by persuasion or compulsion, and place Vice President Zayas at the head of the nation.

When General Gomez received the post of chief magistrate from Governor Magooon the followers of Vice President Zayas stood with those of the president, and even the conservative opposition lent him their loyal support in the determination to give the new administration a fair trial. That they regard the trial as a failure is evidenced by their manifesto issued shortly before the reconvening of congress in which they declared their intention of beginning an active campaign against the administration.

SOVEREIGNS OF THE REGION

Splendidly Led Baboons Ate the Crops in Nigeria So Fast Natives Gave Up Farming.

In many parts of Nigeria, and especially among the hill regions of the northern provinces, baboons are one of the greatest plagues to the farmer and a source of menace to property and even to life. A protectorate officer while engaged in business in a mountain village was informed by the local queen that her people could not continue their farming owing to the raids of baboons.

During the absence of the men a few weeks previously these beasts had actually come into the heart of the village and destroyed the crops, according to the Wide World Magazine. The natives are in constant dread of them and continually fear for the safety of their children.

Sir William Wallace relates that he has seen droves of 50 to 100 of these animals all in single file, and that lately he himself shot two enormous brutes who were grinning at him from the cliffs. They utter a nerve shattering and horrid bark.

They possess a regular system of defense and always have signalmen out to watch for the approach of a possible enemy. These scouts are always the biggest monkeys and they signal by barks to their comrades when strangers are approaching.

FOLLOWED QUARRY TO DEATH

Hawk Unremittant in Its Pursuit of Partridge Selected for its Prey.

Some men working in the fields west of Moscow village the other day saw a hawk start a partridge in a wheat field and attempt to catch it. The partridge was too speedy of wing, though, and for a short distance it flew straight for the village, after attempting to elude its pursuer, thinking, perhaps, that in the habitation of man there was protection from its merciless foe.

The two birds flew down Main street in front of the stores and people on the street, but the hawk was so engrossed in the pursuit of its prey that the presence of men did not frighten it off. The partridge flew about the buildings on Main street and then to the residence section.

It was rapidly tiring from its long flight, and as the hawk, which was stronger of wing, seemed about to clutch it in its talons the partridge attempted to fly in the window of A. J. White's residence, but the window was closed and the bird struck the glass with force enough to break its neck and shatter the pane in many pieces.

The crashing glass frightened the hawk and it quickly flew off, evincing a desire, however, to take the dead body of the partridge with it.—Mount Morris Correspondence Rocker Herald.

Early Mastery of Languages.

The mastery of many languages and the ability to read and write at almost incredibly early ages is not a modern evolution. In the sixteenth century history tells us of one Charles Benet, known as the "man child of Manchester," of whom it was said in the literal words of the old English:

"At 3 years of age he doth speak Latin, Greek and Hebrew, though never taught these languages."

New York, Nov. 29.—Albert T. Patrick, whose sentence of death for the murder of William Marsh Rice, was committed to life imprisonment at Sing Sing, appeared today before the appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn to argue that, within the law, he had already suffered death and thus had paid his debt to the state in full, and should be set free.

The snow and sleet was confined to the western part of the state, but the rain was general over Kansas. The storm is prevailing today.

MONKEY AS AN AUTHOR'S PET

One Owned by Chateaubriand Tore Up His Manuscript and Stole His Orders.

A Paris contemporary dealing with the love of great men for animals gives an amusing account of Chateaubriand and his monkey. When he was engaged in preparing Fontanes' works for the press on returning one day he was met by his monkey.

"Ah, you rogue," said Chateaubriand, "your shamefaced looks tell of mischief." The monkey was chained up, but as things did not appear much disturbed Chateaubriand thought no more of the matter until it was time to resume work. Fontanes' manuscripts were not to be found.

At last Chateaubriand looked into the waste paper basket and there were the manuscripts. The monkey had watched his master, and as he had seen him fold a sheet of paper and tear it into four, so he had dealt with Fontanes' writings. With much labor they were pieced together and afterward published.

Chateaubriand thought it advisable to see what else the monkey had done. His orders had disappeared from a drawer which was always kept closed. The servants searched everywhere for them, but they were not to be found. Nearly a week elapsed before they were traced, and then a domestic noticed that the monkey had suspended them to the cornice in a quasi symmetrical way.

The monkey was given his congee and Chateaubriand replaced him by a cat, which was allowed a place on his master's writing table, and great was the pleasure which he derived in playing with puss.

THE SUGAR TRUST

PRESIDENT WILL HIT IT HARD
IN HIS COMING MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

THE OFFICIALS TO BE LAMBASTED

Taft's Wrath Has Been Aroused by the Recent Disclosures and He Expects to Make the Fur Fly.

Washington, Nov. 23.—There is a kettle heating in the White House for the managers of the Sugar trust. Unless something akin to a miracle happens to change President Taft's convictions, the men who have been directing the affairs of the American Sugar Refining company will receive an excommunication in his message to congress the like of which no corporation has ever had before.

The lash is being prepared and a few extra knots are likely to be tied in it.

Presidential wrath is not going to be wasted on the agents of the trust, who have been sticking corset springs in the scales and slipping $5 bills into the pockets of small-salaried employees of the government. The men who will hear the swish of the White House lash will be those who have been drawing big salaries and who are suspected by the president of having been at the bottom of the whole disgraceful sugar scandal.

What Theodore Roosevelt used to say of corporations is confidently expected to sound like an extract from a rhymical tract when placed beside the personal opinion of William H. Taft as to the acts by which the Sugar Trust corrupted the employees of the government. He has decided opinions as to where the blame should be laid, and he will make no reservations in his drafting of the English language to make his meaning plain.

Investigation on the part of the government has developed the startling fact that the men who now manage the affairs of the American Sugar Refining company own but a comparatively small percentage of its stock.

Just how this change was brought about and when, will be an interesting phase of the congressional committee report. It has come to the knowledge of the president that the Havemeyers, supposed to be heavily interested in the Sugar trust, in reality now control its stock to the extent of only about 1,000 shares.

Similar deductions have been reached in the cases of other men who were believed to be heavily interested in this business.

HOMEMADE GIFTS.

Something Made by the Giver Is Always Appreciated. Christmas is coming, and all the industrious ones are beginning to wonder what they will make for their friends, what kinds of offerings they can design that will have two virtues—evidence of loving care and real usefulness. Under this head will come the lavender sachet illustrated. It is made of cream colored serim and is embroidered in the cross stitch with a little flower design worked in lavender.

A DAINTY AFFAIR IN SCRIM.

der silk, while a wall of Troy is done around the outer edge of the sachet to hide all evidences of the stitching.

To make this little gift one would require a five cent package of dried lavender, a bit of muslin measuring 6 by 10 inches, a piece of serim 8 by 12 inches and three inches of lavender embroidery silk.

Make a bag of the muslin measuring 3 by 5 inches, of course taking off enough for one-quarter inch seams; fill it with the lavender and sew it up. Fold the serim so it measures 4 by 6 inches and embroider the design in the middle of one side. The basket should be done with the middle color, the two center flowers and the leaves of the darkest shade and the rest of the flowers in the lightest shade. This done, sew the serim on three sides on the machine, wrong side out. This will make the bag. Now turn it right side out and sew it like a French seam one-half inch from the outer edge.

This will leave the third side, which will be at either one end or the other, still open, and through this put the muslin bag of lavender. The sachet then needs only to be sewed up on the remaining side, the embroidery done over the stitches, and the gift will be complete.

An Embroidery Apron.

A dainty little sewing apron seen recently struck the keynote of newness and could be easily copied for a Christmas present. It was made of fine muslin in a deep cream shade, and the lower end was turned up about four inches. An inch wide hem at the top of the pocket and another at the top of the apron were run with leaf green ribbons and tied at the ends in soft rosettes. The pocket that extended across the apron and the tiny "hand" pockets above were decorated with brilliant cretonne roses, and a leaf or two were applied to the material by buttonholing in green embroidery silk.

I gazed at the speaker, puzzled.

"Your kindness to that poor boy was most exceptional," continued the stranger. "You fed him, encouraged him, gave him clothes and two dollars and sent him on his way feeling pretty fine. He observed at the time he would never forget your generosity. Do you remember?"

"Not precisely," I replied, but I had a vague remembrance of the occurrence.

"He said," went on the stranger, "that if he prospered, he would see that you would never have occasion to regret your kindness to a struggling boy."

"Well, well!" I exclaimed, as the full remembrance of the incident came to me in a flash. "It's like a story, isn't it? You of course, were that boy?"

"Yes," said the stranger, "and as long as I am here, I might as well tell you that I am still poor."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Sargasso Sea.

In the middle of the North Atlantic there is an area of comparatively still water almost equal to continental Europe in extent and more or less covered with floating seaweed. It was known as the Mar de Sargaco to Columbus and the early navigators and is the Sargasso sea of modern geographers.

The floating seaweed was formerly supposed to have grown near the Bahama and Florida shores, and to have drifted to its present position. It is now, however, known to grow and propagate itself where it is found. In it are found globular masses of weed containing fish eggs and known as fish nests.

Recent investigations show that the floating weed of the Sargasso sea is the chosen breeding place of species of flying fish.—Field.

He Would Resign.

The story is told of an English army examiner who once had before him a stupid candidate. The candidate being apparently unable to answer the simplest questions, the examiner finally grew most impatient, and in a burst of sarcasm demanded:

"Let it be supposed, sir, that you were a captain in command of infantry; that in your rear was an impassable abyss; that on both sides of you there rose perpendicular rocks of tremendous height; that in front of you lay the enemy outnumbering you ten to one. What, sir, in such an emergency would you do?" "Sir," responded the applicant for military distinction, "I should resign."

PERSONALITY IN POLITICS.

In life, in literature, there is no magic charm like that of personality, but politicians are afraid of it in their business. Of this they sedulously cultivate the idea that it must be conducted by committees and parties, never by individualities. Everything is collective, nothing personal. Intrigue and subterranean management are the prime forces, and the old practitioners of the art are always astir when some man of native vigor comes forward with open methods and direct appeals.

EXPERT EXPLAINS RATES ON CENTRAL BRANCH OF THE MISSOURI PACIFIC.

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

According to a statement made by M. C. Markham, assistant to Vice President Clark, of the Missouri Pacific, to Governor Stubbs Saturday, the Central branch road gets 67 per cent of the revenue from shipments originating on its line and hauled to St. Louis. The road from Atchison to St. Louis only gets 33 per cent.

On shipments to Chicago the Central branch gets 40 per cent and the other road 60. Mr. Markham said that the division in railroad circles is known as "pro rata of the rate." In plain English, it means compound proportion of rates and mileage.

For instance, local rates on the Central branch and other roads west of the Missouri river are higher than local rates east of the river. Therefore, in any division made, the roads west of the river were given a share in proportion to their increased rates.

Governor Stubbs asked what principal was used in rate-making in Kansas.

Mr. Markham, after talking about expert rate making and the like for awhile, finally said, "Well, the railroads must live."

"I would like to hire some expert who could tell exactly what the principle is," said the governor with a laugh.

And the governor then added: "Why are Kansas rates higher than Missouri rates, as you say they are? It doesn't cost as much to build, maintain and operate a road in Kansas."

"The volume of traffic has considerable to do with it," said Mr. Markham. "A road that has $15,000 revenue a mile can afford to give cheaper rates than the road that only makes $4,000 gross a mile."

"But the volume of business in Kansas is so great that you can't supply cars to haul it," replied the governor.

"And we can't get the cars because we cannot borrow the money on our Kansas properties," said Mr. Markham.

The governor then told how prosperous the Santa Fe was, and how it was spending money right and left in new improvements.

"The Santa Fe has established its credit and can get all the money it wants," said Mr. Markham. "That is what the Missouri Pacific is trying to do. And we believe we will succeed."

Mediate in Switchmen's Case.

Chairman Martin A. Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, and Dr. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, left Washington late Saturday for St. Paul, Minn., where today they will take up, as mediators under the Erdman act, the controversy that has arisen between the Switchmen's Union of North America and the northwestern railroads.

Several thousand men are involved. The nature of the suit is not disclosed in the correspondence.

The drinking man who stands for the saloon, invariably cries "Personal Liberty," and proceeds to ask you if you are going to make a law which restricts my eating and drinking. In all the agitation against the saloon there has never been one word said about "eating and drinking," but much has been said about the man SELLING it.

There is a law in Missouri now, that makes it a penalty for a grocer to sell a rotten egg, yet anyone has the liberty to eat a dozen each meal if they want them—yet it's not right for him to SELL them. It is not restricting the drinking, but no man has a moral right to SELL his fellowmen that takes his manhood, kills his earning capacity, destroys his home and makes him an easy prey to any disease and later actually takes his life.

Manufactur'r's Surplus Stock Sale

The record-breaking business that this great store has enjoyed this Fall, far surpassing all previous records, brought our stock down far below normal, enabling us to take advantage of every favorable trade turn that might present itself. On account of the backward season and the very warm weather throughout the country, our buyers found scores of manufacturers with surplus stocks on hand which they were anxious to sacrifice. Very few concerns could avail themselves of the situation, because of the fact that they themselves were overstocked, and when our buyers made known the fact that they were in the market for large purchases, they had the pick of the choicest stocks in New York City.

Manufacturers' surplus stocks of Dress Fabrics and Silks, Women's, Misses' and Children's Outer-garments, Gift Goods, Fancy Notions, Etc., were secured and the saving in each instance averaged from 40 to 60 per cent. Tomorrow we give you the full benefit of these exceptional purchases and the Big Christmas Sale is now on in Full Force.

NOTED GRAFT CASE

WILL BE TAKEN UP FOR TRIAL AT HARRISBURG, PENNSYLVANIA, TODAY.

JOSEPH M. HUSTON, AN ARCHITECT

In Company With Several Others He Was Indicted on the Charge of Conspiracy to Defraud the Commonwealth.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 29.—Joseph M. Huston, architect, who is alleged to have been involved in the mammoth graft conspiracy to defraud the state in connection with the building and furnishing of the new Pennsylvania state capitol, will be placed on trial today.

The specific charge against Huston is conspiracy to defraud the state in connection with a bill for 272 chairs.

The commonwealth's lawyers say they propose to combat any effort Huston's attorney's may make to secure another continuance of the trial.

A special panel of jurymen has been drawn from which to select the jury.

Huston was indicted with John H. Sanderson, the contractor, since deceased; ex-Auditor General W. P. Snyder, ex-State Treasurer W. L. Mathews, deceased, and ex-Superintendent J. M. Shumaker on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the state on an invoice for desks.

Snyder and Shumaker have been granted severances, and Huston's trial has been twice postponed.

Snyder was convicted, but has appealed to the supreme court from the realization that he has broken all records in hanging on to a cabinet job.

"Tama Jim," it may be explained for the sake of the few ignorant persons who don't know, is the Hon. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. He was appointed head of the department of wheat, corn, hogs and other agricultural by-products in 1897. President McKinley being responsible.

When McKinley met his tragic death and Roosevelt ruled in his stead, Wilson hung on. When Roosevelt was re-elected, Wilson was still sitting calmly on the agricultural lid, and refused to budge from his comfortable position.

When Teddy went the way of presidents, and the Great Smile came into office, the Hon. James Wilson, of Tampa, Fla., was the first to congratulate him. Taft couldn't think of disturbing such a fixture, and so, all base rumors notwithstanding, "Tama Jim" stood pat.

Now that he has broken all cabinet-hanging-on records, maybe he will be willing to quit and give the youngsters a chance. Maybe. And maybe not.

Anyway, it is altogether unlikely that the corn belt could yield up a man more conversant with the job than this same James Wilson. What he doesn't know about agriculture, he and his experts of the department are busily engaged in finding out. The czar of agriculture is 74 years of age, but he has been too busy to mind that. He hasn't yet commenced to get old.

When the socialists inaugurate the long-heralded co-operative commonwealth, along about 2010, we may expect to read in our morning paper: President Blank today announced the following appointments of cabinet members: "For secretary of agriculture, James Wilson, of Iowa."

WILSON A STAYER

A MAN FROM IOWA HAS BROKEN ALL RECORDS AS A CABINET OFFICER.

HE'S SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

Appointed By President William McKinley In 1897, and Has Held On to Office With Death-Like Grip Ever Since.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Once upon a time, away back in the ancient history of the United States, there was a financier named Gallatin—Albert Gallatin, to be exact. He was born in Geneva, the same being in Switzerland, and came to the land of the free and the home of the brave in 1780.

Shortly afterward he settled in Pennsylvania. He became a member of the legislature of that state, but that shouldn't be laid up against him, because it was then a very respectable body, and also acquired some fame as a financier.

That wasn't so very reprehensible, either, because the finance of those days wasn't of the kind popularly known as "high." In 1801 he became secretary of the treasury in Marse Thomas Jefferson's cabinet.

When Jefferson retired, James Madison handed over the treasury portfolio to Mr. Gallatin. So it came to pass that Mr. Gallatin hung on to his cabinet job for twelve years, eight months and twenty days, and to this day his record as a cabinet hanger-on has not been equalled.

To this day, mind you. Now we are getting to the plot, and are about to lay bare the true inwardness of this biographical and historical reference.

Listen: Albert Gallatin, of Pennsylvania, is a has-been. He has joined the down-and-out club. He has lost the championship belt of the presidential cabinet.

Listen again: "Tama Jim" is it, with a big I. For he has served as a cabinet official twelve years, eight months and twenty days, and tomorrow morning, when he wakes from his peaceful slumber, it will be to the realization that he has broken all records in hanging on to a cabinet job.

"Tama Jim," it may be explained for the sake of the few ignorant persons who don't know, is the Hon. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. He was appointed head of the department of wheat, corn, hogs and other agricultural by-products in 1897. President McKinley being responsible.

When McKinley met his tragic death and Roosevelt ruled in his stead, Wilson hung on. When Roosevelt was re-elected, Wilson was still sitting calmly on the agricultural lid, and refused to budge from his comfortable position.

The women were charged jointly with Robert Schwartz, Philip A. Phillips and Thomas Murphy, who were arrested two months ago, with conspiring to defraud the government by evading its responsibility.

The women were held in $8,000 each for their appearance before the United States circuit court in New York in January. Both were locked up in default.

Present Liquor Law Is the Most Drastic to Be Found in Any State in the Union—What the Election Means.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 29.—After a campaign in which hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent and thousands of speakers have addressed vast audiences, Alabama is today in the throes of an election in which constitutional prohibition is the issue.

Scenes of excitement are reported all over the state. Women and children are taking part in demonstrations and parades designed to influence the voters to accept the constitutional amendment which will make prohibition a part of the organic law of the state.

The anti-amendment followers are also waging a hard fight and have spent large sums and employed more than a thousand speakers.

Under the state-wide prohibition law passed by the legislature, Alabama is already as dry as the proverbial bone. These statutes are the most stringent ever adopted by any state, and every possible bulwark has been raised against the liquor traffic. By today's election it is hoped that these laws will be made permanent by a constitutional amendment.

The prospects are that the constitutional amendment will be adopted by a considerable majority, but it will have to encounter the influence of a large amount of money turned loose by the liquor interests which are making a last desperate stand in Alabama territory.

The laws which went into effect a short time ago bid fair to revolutionize the social conditions of the state which have been in vogue for a century.

The traditions of hospitality for which Alabama has been famed almost ever since it was settled by the white man are being overturned and an entirely new order of things in entertainment has been introduced.

Mother of Pugilist Declares She's Too Old for "Fineries."

Galveston, Texas, Nov. 29.—"Niggers ain't got no business puttin' on airs like white folks, and I reckon 'Aunt Tinney' will be back in two weeks to take in washing and stitching."

With this farewell to a crowd of negro men and women who flocked to the station, "Aunt Tinney" Johnson, aged mother of Jack Johnson, the champion heavyweight pugilist, boarded the train for Chicago, where she has been summoned by Johnson to spend her remaining days in a handsome mansion just purchased.

"Aunt Tinney," as she has been known to the oldest and most aristocratic families of Galveston for years, is a perfect type of the old-fashioned southern "mammy." She says she is proud of her son, whom she always calls "Arthur," but she has told white folks here that she is too old for "fineries" and will return shortly to work at her old trade of washing.

REFUGES TO MAKE ENTRY

In Cincinnati Alimony Case Until Missing Papers Are Returned.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 29.—When Mrs. Amelia Boldt sued Charles H. Boldt, head of the Boldt Glass Works, for alimony, the charges made by the wife were closely guarded, the attorneys withdrawing the petition from the files on the pretext that they needed it in their preparation.

Both sides requested a secret hearing which Judge Warner refused, at the same time censoring the attorneys for making the request. He also announced that the withdrawn petition, containing charges said to be highly sensational, will have to be returned to the files before any entry will be made in the case.

Do You Get Up
With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to invested about $65,000 in street paving.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N.Y., on every bottle.

After the German empire had been laid down upon Texas in the remainder space of 57,510 square miles it would be feasible to tuck in all of England and Wales with the exception of the tiny county of Rutland. Or if that arrangement should promise to impose too much work upon the Texas Rangers it would be possible to include the Netherlands, Belgium and Denmark and Switzerland. Still Texas would have room for a few stragglers.

Tribute to De Armond

Missouri Society in Washington
Passes Memorial Resolution.

Washington, Nov. 29.—The Missouri Society of Washington, at its regular meeting Saturday night, adopted a memorial on the death of Representative David A. DeArmond.
The resolutions paid tribute to the earnest, conscientious and vigilant performance of his public duties, to his high personal character and to the implicit faith which his constituents placed in him. The committee presenting the resolutions was composed of Judge Leavitt, chairman; G.

A. Smith, Horace J. Phelps and O.
Wyatt. Judge Leavitt, in presenting the resolutions, recalled the masterful address that Judge DeArmond had delivered before the society two years ago.

The chief entertainer for the evening was Rear Admiral Chester, whose parents formerly resided in Kansas City. He was a member of the committee of the National Geographic society, which recently officially examined for that body the data of Commander Robert E. Peary and reported that Peary had reached the north pole.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to Admiral Chester for his address, and, in further token of the association's appreciation of his presence, he was elected to honorary membership in the society.

Previous to the address a tenor solo was sung by Clifford Harwood, with Mrs. A. C. Kitner accompanying. A piano solo was given by Miss Gertrude McRae, and Miss Ruby Thurmonds sang a solo.

West Plains, Mo., Nov. 29.—Maggie
A. Payne lies dead in her home here and Everett Benn is in a critical condition as a result of a lover's quarrel.
The girl shot her sweetheart and then drank poison. Benn and Miss Payne had been keeping company for some time. Sunday afternoon he called on her as usual. Benn, it is said, had been paying some attention to visiting
Texas girl, and in a fit of jealousy Miss Payne emptied five chambers of a revolver at him, two bullets entering his head and two striking him in the back. She then drank three ounces of carbolic acid and was dead when friends, attracted by the shots, reached the house. None of the other members of the family were at home.

Only One

There is only One Oil Heater for the housekeeper who wants the Best. By best is meant thorough, all-around work and faultless efficiency down to the smallest detail. This work must be performed day after day without fuss and fume and without smoke.

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

No other oil heater in the world has attained the high heat efficiency and the sure smokeless performance reached by this splendid achievement of modern science.

Turn the wick up as high as it will go—there's no smoke—as low as you please, there's no smell—no fuss.

In raising, the wick is checked before it reaches the point at which it would smoke, by the new, quickly-removed

Automatic Smokeless Device

The flame is at its zenith of power, when the wick is locked, thus getting the heater's full capacity.

The heat is as cleanly as that which comes from a steam radiator—and more certain. You may have it just where you want it—beside the window—in the library—in the bath room or in the living room.

Brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—burns 9 hours. Finished in nickel or Japan. Various styles and finishes. Damper top—cool handle—aluminum window frame.

FIREBUG GOES TO PRISON

His Sentence of Two Years Accepted
By a Clinton Man.

Clinton, Mo., Nov. 29.—W. H. Shull, who operated a moving picture and vaudeville theater in this city that was destroyed by fire last January, collected insurance to the amount of $2,500. He was tried at the September term of court on a charge of arson. A negro employee named Akers testified that Shull hired him to burn the building.

The jury found Shull guilty and sentenced him to the penitentiary for two years. He appealed to the supreme court. Now, however, he has accepted the sentence and will go at once to Jefferson City. The insurance companies have taken his pool hall and will sell it to reimburse them for their $2,500.

Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy."

SERVED 32 YEARS

JUSTICE HARLAN, OF UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT, HAS THE RECORD.

WAS NAMED BY PRESIDENT HAYES

Was Born In Kentucky June 1, 1833, the Same Year as Justice Fuller. But Has Had Eleven Years' More Service.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Uncle Sam's supreme court resumed business at the old stand today, after a holiday devoted to increasing the mortality rate among the turkeys of the land.

As an incident of the inaugural ceremonies, Justice Harlan received the congratulations of his colleagues on reaching the thirty-second anniversary of his appointment to the supreme bench.

He was appointed by President Hayes Nov. 29, 1877. Although he received his commission immediately he refrained from taking his place on the bench until Dec. 10 following, in obedience to the unwritten law that a supreme court justice shall not assume his duties until his appointment has been passed on by the senate.

This unwritten law will prevent the successor to the late Justice Peckham from filling the vacancy in the supreme court until after congress has assembled in regular session next month.

The objection to the seating of a justice during a recess of congress is that the failure of the senate to confirm his nomination would seriously impair the weight of any decisions on important cases in which he may have participated.

Further, it has been reasoned that the attitude of a justice in considering cases of a political nature while holding a temporary commission might be influenced by a natural desire to secure the approval of a sufficient number of senators to insure his confirmation.

Justice John Marshall Harlan was born in Kentucky June 1, 1833, the same year as Chief Justice Fuller, but has had eleven years more service on the supreme bench than his judicial superior.

MADE "A GOOD JOB OF IT"

Boy Accidentally Shot His Companion, Then Killed Him.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 29.—While hunting Saturday Wesley McBride, aged 16, according to his own version of the affair, accidentally shot his companion, Harry Long, aged 15, in the jaw and then fired two shots into his head to "make a good job of it."

McBride says he was twirling a revolver on his finger when the accident occurred. He notified the police of the shooting and told of firing two shots which ended Long's life.

McBride's parents say his mind was affected by a recent severe illness.

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.

Pet Mispronunciations.

"Have you ever noticed," asked the teacher in English, "that a great many well-educated people persistently pronounce at least one word incorrectly? I know a college man who for some mysterious reason always says 'timidity' for timidity, and he drags this oddity into almost every sentence he speaks. Mrs. Smith's pet word is 'prejudice,' while Mrs. Jones can't help saying 'guiltastic.' Just listen to them, and you'll hear the same people repeating over and over such mistakes as 'predilection,' 'circumlocution,' 'cupolo,' etc. Some one must have called their attention to it, I suppose, but they have grown attached to their way of pronouncing, and don't like to change."

Many Important Conventions Will Be Held During the Meeting

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 29.—Iowa's prominence as a corn state is fittingly illustrated by the exhibits shown today at the opening of the seventh annual exposition of the Iowa Corn Growers' association.

Cash prizes and trophies to the value of $20,000 are offered, and the liberal premiums have attracted universal attention among the farmers.

The show will remain open to December 11, and in that interval many important conventions will be held in this city.

The attendance is expected to be the largest in the history of the association, as there is a hearty cooperation of farmers and corn growers from all parts of the state.

It is the aim of the association to make the exhibition an educational affair. The points that will be taken into consideration will be general appearance, maturity, vitality, shelling percentage and breeding type.

The points on which the final judging will determine the winners will be general appearance, productiveness and breed type.

Its merits are becoming the talk of the town and everybody wants to try it, and why not? It costs nothing if it don't do you good—not one cent.

Suits That Fit—Fits That Suit

Weisburgh's, Men's Tailor,

True to Memory of Beau Nash.

The famous Beau Nash was at one time extremely fond of a beautiful girl called Juliana Papjoy, sometimes known as the Bishopstrow belle. She used to ride about the streets of Bath on a fine gray horse carrying a whip with many thongs, a fad which gained, for her the title of Lady Betty Besom. Juliana was very kind-hearted and during the last five years of the beau's life she nursed him devotedly. After his death she vowed that she would never again sleep in a bed and took up her abode in a large hollow tree, where she lived for many years earning a scanty livelihood by selling herb medicines and fetching and carrying. At last Juliana became very ill and, knowing she could not possibly recover, she felt an intense longing to die in her old cottage home at Bishopstrow. More dead than alive, she set out on this last journey, and managed to reach the house where she was born in time to die there.
